COUNCIL DEBATES NEW NOISE ORDINANCE

DAN MORROW

Discussions of a comprehensive new noise ordinance dominated the Thursday, October 9, regular meeting of the Middleburg Town Council. Also on the agenda was a draft design for new signs to mark the town limits of Middleburg on Route 50, north and south of the village.

Apparently prompted by a smattering of complaints about noise associated with ongoing construction on the Salamander Inn site on the north edge of Middleburg, the new draft noise ordinance has taken on a life of its own and now, for the first time, seeks to address in detail the general issue of what constitutes acceptable "noise" levels within the town limits.

"At certain levels, noise can be detrimental to the health, welfare, safety, and quality of life of inhabitants of the town," the draft ordinance declares, "and in the public interest noise should be restricted."

Party On?

Of particular concern to Council are what the draft describes as "mass outdoor social gatherings, using amplified sound."

Unless such gatherings are "subjected to coordination and planning efforts with the town," Council apparently fears they will "... create noise disturbances and related adverse effects for the citizens ...". Therefore, the draft proposes, it will be "... the policy of the town to reduce, and eliminate where possible, noise disturbances and related adverse conditions ... and to prohibit unnecessary, excessive, harmful and annoying noise from all sources subject to its police power."

Class 2 Misdemeanor: $1,000 Daily Fines

A "noise disturbance," according to the draft, means "any sound which by its character, intensity and duration" either "endangers or injures health or safety of persons within the town," or "annoys or disturbs reasonable persons of normal sensitivities within the town."

Offenders may be fined $300 for a first offense, $500 for a second offense within a year of the first, and $1,000 for ANY subsequent offense within the same 12-month period. "Each day the

Work at Salamander Resort & Spa recently reached the one-year mark and construction remains on schedule for a mid-March, 2010, opening.

After six months of initial site-work, the last six have been spent on actual vertical construction and the outline of Sheila Johnson's vision has begun to take shape; almost the entire building has been framed and crews have begun the process of closing it in.

According to Prem Devadas, President of Salamander Hospitality, LLC, a veteran of the hospitality industry who also oversaw the development of The Sanctuary at Kiawah Island in South Carolina, the time spent leading up to the initial ground-breaking last year has served the project well.

"To date, we've had no major surprises or setbacks. We had the time and opportunity to plan everything to the finest detail, and that plan is really bearing out now that we're underway.

"You always learn from previous experiences, but having owners with the kind of commitment and clarity of vision that Sheila has demonstrated only helps elevate a project of this scope and scale.

"The property will compare favorably to any in the country."

A sure sign of that favorable comparison is a corporate sales office already in full swing. Open since spring of this year, that sales office has already hosted a number of corporate representatives eager to book meetings at the Resort.

"Corporate business is one of the keys to our future success," said Devadas, "and I think the early impressions people have had to date speak volumes, not only about the property itself but the surrounding area, Middleburg and the Virginia Piedmont, as well."

Another sign of Dr. Johnson's commitment to the project and to the area as a whole is her insistence that the property be of the area and not just in it. While the property sits on over 300 acres, 70 percent of that land has been placed in a conservation easement.

The property is also already registered to be one of the country's first Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design (LEED) certified resorts. While official certification must await the completion of construction, it's useful to know what the six major areas of LEED certification address: sustainable sites; water efficiency; energy and atmosphere; materials and resources; indoor environmental quality; and innovation and design process.

"The design- and build-costs are obviously higher," notes Devadas, "but when you look at them as investments, not only in the property but in the area, well, I think it speaks directly to our sensitivities to the environment and to the clientele we are looking to attract."

Other amenities planned for the resort include: a 23,000-square-foot spa with 14 treatment rooms, fitness center, indoor pool, outdoor family pool and tennis courts; championship golf at the nearby Jack Nicklaus-designed Creighton Farms Estates; a 22-stall equestrian stable, along with practice ring, instructional programming and miles of scenic riding trails throughout the property; Virginia Piedmont-inspired dining in the resort's signature restaurant (Todd Gray, owner and chef of the acclaimed Equinox restaurant in Washington, DC, is the Creative Director of Cuisine); and a variety of luxurious and flexible meeting spaces, including a 200-year-old stallion barn, the Terrace Lawn at the Pond and the 5,000-square-foot Grand Ballroom. (The resort, which features a total of 12,000 square feet of meeting space, can also arrange group functions for up to 30 people at its private suite at The Verizon Center.)

Perhaps Devadas sums it up best when he says simply, "This is really going to be something special."

It's certainly beginning to sound that way.

FAUQUIER HOSPITAL COMPLETES RENOVATION BEAUTIFUL NEW EMERGENCY DEPARTMENT OPENS OFFICIALLY

More than $70 million has been invested in the renovation and expansion of Fauquier Hospital in Warrenton and the sensitivity to details that can make a difficult time more civilized and supportive is obvious everywhere. Nowhere is this more obvious than in the new emergency department that officially opened this month. From the tall, expansive curve of windows that bring the mountains crisply into view to the palette of pale blues, leaf greens and ash violets, and the mix of blond and dark woods, the context created provides a handsome, calm and confident space where the many fears and crises an emergency department must absorb can be addressed in a positive, customer-centered environment.

Chairman of the Emergency Department Dr. Joseph G. Servey is justifiably proud of the new facility. "We wanted make our concern and commitment obvious to our patients and their families," he explained. "The space is designed to facilitate both privacy and staff communication, both are essential for good emergency care, but without careful planning, they are not always complementary."

The hospital's Bistro Restaurant already attracts guests from way beyond the hospital's walls, and, as one of five Planettec Hospitals in the country, patients may enjoy room service from the restaurant. Additional services related to the Planettec "patient centered care" philosophy include concierge services, flowers for each patient courtesy of the hospital, large rooms with lots of windows and soft lighting, a dog therapy program and many other amenities.

Fauquier Hospital serves 35,000 patients a year and the emergency facility has gone from three beds to thirty-three.

Although Fauquier is not positioned to compete with the major hospitals in the region, they intend to give their patients the very best

SHIRLEY WOLFE and SARAHAN, PT THERAPY FACILITATOR AND MEMBER OF THE EXECUTIVE BOARD AUXILIARY, CAROL SCOTT, LINDA SHARKE, VP OF PATIENT SERVICES, JO-ANNE PALKER & JUDITH AND RACHEL BAKER, CEO experience possible at a community to our services from the bedside to surgery to comprehensive support." Dr. Servey said. "We have a tremendous team at Fauquier Hospital, and now our facility offers the same level of care and service."

GOODSTONE INN'S NEW EXECUTIVE CHEF

Who says you can't go home again? Chef Tarver King will return to the rolling hills of Virginia when he takes the reins as executive chef for The Goodstone Inn & Estate and Hilltoppers Restaurant, October 6th. Simon Smith, general manager for the Goodstone Inn & Estate, made the announcement.

"I am thrilled to welcome Tarver to The Goodstone Inn's culinary team," said Mr. Smith. "He is an immensely accomplished chef who has cooked at some of the very best restaurants in the United States and Europe. He brings significant talent and culinary expertise to our property and to our restaurant."

A native of Virginia, Chef King began cooking at the age of 15 inspired by his grandmother, and a Julia Child cookbook. He had no idea that the world of food could be so infinite and exciting. His passion to develop his own style of cooking took him to some of America's greatest kitchens including the French Laundry, Le Bec Fin, and Roy's in Philadelphia before landing at The Inn at Little Washington in 2002.

It was there that he was mentored by renowned chef Patrick O'Connell.

Reflecting on his vision for The Goodstone Inn and Hilltoppers, Chef King said he intends to serve "approachable cuisine that involves the guest in bold, straight-forward and rounded flavors," stimulating all five senses.

"My food will be extremely fresh - what is growing in the kitchen garden and what is in season locally. This is how I love to cook... fresh, aromatic and tender vegetables, herbs, fruits, fish and meats. I want to bring what's growing outside on The Goodstone's estate inside to Hilltoppers' table, creating a seamless sensory experience for our guests."

Mr. King, who has been hailed as a "Chef to Watch" by both The Wine Spectator magazine and Esquire is passionate about sustainable cooking and cuisine prepared with the freshest, most natural ingredients. He has found a kindred spirit in The Goodstone Inn & Estate, and in its restaurant, Hilltoppers. The property launched an important farm-to-table cuisine initiative in the spring of 2008, featuring vastly expanded organically maintained kitchen gardens, orchards, and herb gardens. Future plans for Hilltoppers and The Goodstone Inn & Estate include monthly wine dinners, cooking classes as well as featured special events in and around The Goodstone.

INOVA VS HCA

THE VIEW FROM MIDDLEBURG

On September 11, 2008, on the eve of a major public hearing before the Loudoun County Planning Commission, Middleburg's Town Council unanimously passed a resolution opposing construction of Hospital Corporation of America's proposed new 164-bed hospital, sited on nearly 60 acres, in Broadlands, near the intersection of State Route 659 and the Dulles Greenway, roughly five miles from Inova Loudoun's existing facility.

Specifically, Council requested that the Planning Commission and the Board of Supervisors comply with what it believes to be the clear language of the County's current Comprehensive Plan, namely that "... the next full-service hospital be constructed closer to Middleburg, at some point on Route 50".

The September 11 resolution requested the Planning Commission to request to build its new Broadlands Regional Medical Center. It was the only request, out of nearly 90 similar ones, to be denied.

HCA used to have the Superior's decision overturned in Loudoun County Circuit Court. With legal proceedings dragging on, in March, 2008, by a one-vote majority, a new Board of Supervisors agreed to allow HCA to put forward a new application. That application, submitted by HCA in April, was, for all practical purposes identical to the one submitted nearly four years earlier.

During that entire period the Virginia State Health Commissioner's vital "Certificate of Public Need" for the hospital had been reviewed and extended several times.

On the eve of the Eagle Ridge hearing, senior executives from both Inova Loudoun Hospital and HCA responded to questions from the Middleburg Eccentric about the key issues in the on-off-on-off struggle, that has divided the County for four years.

Loudoun County's Comprehensive Plan

According to Inova Loudoun Hospital CEO, Randy Kelley, the County's Comprehensive Plan is clear, and little or nothing has changed since 2004 to negate the goal of having health care facilities available to "all county residents" within "twenty minutes driving time" during peak traffic. Putting a second hospital within five miles of an already existing facility, according to Kelley, neither conforms to the intentions of County planners, nor serves the best interests of potential patients of either Inova Loudoun or HCA.

The most recent staff report from the County's land-use planning staff recommending that rezoning to allow construction of the HCA facility be approved, did not specifically address the issue of peak-traffic travel time for residents of the western side of the county.

HCA's Mark Faust contends that the Broadlands site meshes perfectly with both the intent of the County's Comprehensive Plan and the realities of patient need in the County. Pointing to maps of current and projected population density, Faust notes that Broadlands site best addresses current needs and current growth projections, and that the State of Virginia's often-renewed Certificate of Need for new hospital beds in the area supports HCA's plans.

Does Competition Improve Care?

HCA's Faust insists that having two large hospitals within five miles of each other is both a good idea now, and for the foreseeable future. In addition to putting needed healthcare facilities near where most potential patients already live, Faust asserts that vigorous competition among highly motivated professionals in health care promotes high standards, and, by doing so, not only steadily improves the quality of care and staff, but works to promote cost efficiency as well.

Inova Loudoun's Kelley, on the other hand, notes that unlike most businesses, "Healthcare doesn't really benefit from competition." The statistics on the "quality of care" side are unequivocal, he points out. The more of a given procedure hospital surgery teams do, the better they do it. And the more complicated and critical the procedure, the stronger the effect. If HCA builds at Broadlands, according to Kelley, the county risks having two "good" hospitals within five miles of each other, instead of one "excellent" hospital fully capable of serving the same area.

What About Money?

Inova Loudoun contends that reducing the number of patients served by its non-profit facility at Loudoun risks having a severe impact on cash flow. Less money coming in may dictate having a smaller staff for existing facilities, fewer services offered, and less money, if any, available for long-planned outreach programs and the Inova Loudoun Foundation's other charitable activities in the County.

HCA, the county's largest for-profit hospital corporation, contends that the county's high-income demographics, combined with its demonstrated need for more hospital beds, comes as close as humanly possible to guaranteeing the financial stability of both Inova Loudoun's Loudoun facility and HCA's new hospital at Broadlands. Otherwise, Faust noted, HCA would not have made a well-considered business and staff, but works to promote cost efficiency as well.

MIDDLEBURG RESTAURANTS CELEBRATE DELICIOUS LOCAL FARE

ADYSON BROWITT

(Editor's Note: Last month's article about the Restaurant Symposium misstated Jay Trice's affiliation. He Trice is the proprietor of the Hidden Horse Tavern, 540-687-3521.)

Many of the restaurants in Middleburg will offer special featuring local produce, meats and wines during the last two weeks in November as part of an ongoing cooperative effort to promote local food and several foods.

Following the recent Restaurant Symposium, restaurateurs and producers met to discuss how they could work together to promote the Piedmont region's excellent foods, and create more of a market for the "farm-to-table" concept to capitalize on local products and benefit the local economy.

According to the Virginia Farm Bureau Federation, the State's agricultural sector currently generates $2.6 billion in business annually. However, according to a study conducted by the Virginia Cooperative Extension, if every household in the state spent $10 each week on local produce, that number would grow by $1.65 billion a year.

Locally, the Middleburg Business and Professional Association—that underwrites the advertisements for the November specials—helps the restaurants' efforts to get additional business to create promotional ideas to benefit the economy.

At the September meeting, Sarah Rousseau of Green Alchemy Herb & Mercantile in Lovettsville and Debbie Hornberger of Hill High Country Store discussed their Agro Depot joint venture. The organization helps farmers and artisans within a 150-mile radius sell, market and distribute their products to restaurants, businesses, institutions, resorts and communities.

For a seasonal or annual fee, Agro Depot will help farmers and artisans distribute their goods and deliver to restaurants weekly bins. Some Middleburg restaurants, including the Red Fox Inn, have already signed up for the service.

Sally Bolton of the Corner Garden and Vineyard Nursery, who has been instrumental in organizing the get-togethers, said she is excited by the fact that most of what we grow and eat has been sourced to foreign nations "while we were sleeping." She said that many restaurants have turned into "fast food establishments one way or another," by ordering much of their ingredients from wholesale distributors and using prepared foods.

Bolton said she believes that a more educated public is seeking out food that is local because it tastes better and is healthier.

There is no reason why this nation can't go back to regional cuisine," Bolton said, adding that the use of local products in our markets and restaurants creates more of a "community-based economy" and fosters cooperation, support and friendship among business owners.

Most of the restaurants in Middleburg will be participating in the November effort, running specially featuring local fare on the weekends of November 21-23 and November 28-30. For more detailed information, contact your favorite restaurant to ask for its specials ... and a reservation.

BRAMBLETON CONTINUES WINNING WAYS

Loudoun County's Brambleton recently added two additional laurels to the many honors the planned community has received.

Presented at the annual Excellence in Construction event the newly opened Brambleton Visitor's Center and Builders Showcase by Hubert Construction placed first in the Interiors Category. Viviana Izarrat of Cache Furnishings handled the Center's interior design.

In the Retail ($5 million and over) Category, Brambleton Town Center's Phase II (L.F. Jennings, contractor) took the first place honors.

"We are thrilled to receive this recognition amid so much prestigious competition in the Washington metropolitan area's building industry," said Brambleton's Director of Marketing Kim Adams.

More than 170 projects in the metropolitan Washington and Virginia area were entered in this year's competition. The high level of excellence.

The Metropolitan Washington and Virginia Chapters of Associated Builders and Contractors sponsored the event.

WHEN NOTHING BUT THE BEST TURKEY WILL DO

Chief Ernest Lagasse wanted nothing but the best for his Thanksgiving Day Special on "Discovery Channel's Ernest Green" show, so he contacted Jessica and Sean Baker of Day Spring Farm in Middleburg to order one of their pasture-raised turkeys.

"We were so excited," Jessica said laughing. "Before the show was complete, the crew came to Middleburg to film at our four-generation family farm and we showed them our grass-fed beef and lambs and our pasture-raised chickens and turkeys in readiness."

The Bakers' farm is attached to Lowe's Lamb Farm, where Jessica grew up and where many families from far and wide come for Christmas trees every year.

"All our egg production is handled by nine-year-old 'Tummy.' Medium, three-and-a-half, is a real poultry entrepreneur, and nine-month-old Grace helped enormously with the holiday filming from her perch in her backpack."

The "Traveler's Guide" shows originate at the Fair Lakes Whole Foods Store, and the Thanksgiving show will air November 24 at 8 p.m. on Discovery Channel's Eco-Lifestyle Network, Planet Green.

decision to invest millions building on the Greenway.

Can't We All Just Get Along?

When asked what would happen if HCA's four-year-old request to build at Broadlands were finally approved, both Inova Loudoun and HCA responded diplomatically.

Inova Loudoun's Kelly observed that his non-profit hospital was about to celebrate a century of service to the County and would do its best to continue its long and special history of care, no matter what obstacles were thrown in its way. His primary concern, and that of all those associated with the hospital, he said, was to provide first-class medical care, county-wide. According to Kelly, Inova Loudoun would not only be willing to work with HCA to help make sure that such care was appropriately accessible, financially rational, and safely distributed around the county.

HCA agreed that first-class care was everyone's primary goal, noted that HCA's history and the State of Virginia's certification of the need for new hospital beds spoke precisely to that goal, and looked forward to an excellent working relationship between healthcare providers working from Inova's facility at Loudoun and those based in the new Broadlands Medical Center.

From the point of view of Middleburg's Town Council, both Loudoun and Broadlands remain, in every respect, still far, far away.

PROUD TO SERVE YOU TODAY... ...CONCERNED ABOUT EMERGENCY CARE IN LEESBURG FOR TOMORROW.

This is Emergency Nurses Week. The employees of the Emergency Department at the Inova Leesburg Medical Campus are:

- Proud to be the first line of care for 17,000 patients annually in the Emergency Room
- Committed to the highest quality of care for our community
- Dedicated to continued professionalization in practice and care
- Focused on prevention and treatment of illness and injury

We are also concerned that building a hospital in Broadlands, just 5 miles from the existing hospital, will force medical services in Leesburg to be shut down. We signed our names here to urge Leesburg Supervisor Kelly Burk and western Loudoun Supervisor Sally Kurtz to:

- ♦ Make no decision that harms the Leesburg Emergency Department & medical services
- ♦ Stand up for residents of Leesburg, western & northern Loudoun to preserve emergency medical access
- ♦ Follow the County Comprehensive Plan goals to ensure access closer to home for all Loudoun citizens
- ♦ Reject the proposed Broadlands Regional Medical Center because it fails to meet all these goals

NEWS OF NOTE

UNISON AREA ON THE NATIONAL REGISTER

The new National Park Service history and mapping of the battle known as the Battle of Unison has just been published by the National Park Service.

The history, dated by a 2006 federal grant to the Union Battlefield group from the U.S. Department of Interior, confirms that the battle around Unison was far more important than previously thought.

And it has led to a second federal grant this summer, this one to help place the Unison Battlefield, including eight miles from Palmyra to 13 miles, on both the National Register of Historic Places and the Virginia Landmarks Register.

The 22-page history of the battle is illustrated with color maps showing the details of the three-day battle, historical sketches and drawings, period and contemporary photographs and a copy of Lincoln's letter to Maj. Gen. George McClellan laying out the strategy that led to the battle.

Lincoln's planned thrust through Loudoun County was designed to cut off Gen. Robert E. Lee's Army of Northern Virginia from its capital in Richmond and possibly hasten the end of the Civil War.

But overall, Confederate force under Maj. Gen. J.E.B. Stuart delayed the advance of the much larger Union Army for three days around Unison, leading Lincoln's plan and allowing the violation is committed or permitted to continue shall constitute a separate offense.

Covered by the proposed legislation would be radios, TV sets, musical instruments and "similar devices" if they could be "heard across a residential property boundary" or through the walls of adjacent apartments.

The law would apply if a "noise" was "plainly audible" at a distance of 50 feet from its source, or the building in which it was located, or "otherwise creates a noise disturbance."

Public Nuisance

Rules and some specific exceptions are detailed for horns, whistles, fireworks, loud vehicles and their sound systems, boat mufflers, construction, chain saws, trash collection and parties.

A "large party public nuisance" is described as any gathering of "ten or more people where the gathering is not contained within a structure, but spills outdoors into balconies, yards, common areas, parking lots, or other outdoor spaces" and creates "a noise disturbance."

Decibel Levels?

The ordinance does not set decibel level standards for what constitutes "noise" and at least one member of Council made clear that no such scientific measures of sound intensity were being contemplated. Asked why, sources close to the Town Administrative Staff noted that decibels were expensive, required periodic calibration, and special training for the police officer or other town staff who would be using them.

Back to the Drawing Board

After several current Council members and former Council member Eira Lewis expressed concern about the draft's highly subjective definitions of what constituted nuisance, and the potential impact of such legislation on anyone holding a small party outdoors, no action was taken pending completion further research and rewriting of the ordinance.

Other Actions

In other action, Council resolved to submit specific goals related to the implementation of its recently completed formal "vision statement" for the future of Middleburg. A draft of the Council's recently completed "vision" for the village to 2025 is available upon request at the Town office.

Mayor Davis and Town Administrator Jerry Schiro are already considering the implications of the current recession on Town revenues and next year's budget.

Local charities have also begun to feel the impact of a noticeable downturn in business in the County.

WHAT'S GOING ON?

WHAT IS IT ABOUT THESE PARTS OF THE COMPREHENSIVE PLAN THAT LOUDOUN COUNTY GOVERNMENT FAILS TO UNDERSTAND?

- "...A GOAL OF HAVING [HEALTH CARE FACILITIES] AVAILABLE TO ALL COUNTY RESIDENTS WITHIN 20 MINUTES DRIVING TIME DURING PERIODS OF PEAK TRAVEL DEMAND."
- "DEVELOPMENT OF SOPHISTICATED, HIGH-LEVEL HEALTH CARE SERVICES FOR HEALTH CARE CONSUMERS (INCLUDING A TERTIARY MEDICAL CENTER WITHIN LOUDOUN COUNTY THAT WILL PERMIT RESIDENTS TO CHOOSE TO STAY IN THE COUNTY FOR CARE)."
- "THE COUNTY WILL ENCOURAGE WIDE DISPERSAL OF [HEALTH CARE] FACILITIES AND AVOID CONCENTRATION OF DISASTER SUPPORT FACILITIES IN PROXIMITY TO ONE ANOTHER."
- "THE CORNWALL EMERGENCY FACILITY, LOCATED IN LEESBURG, PRESENTLY SERVES AS A MUCH NEEDED RECEIVING FACILITY FOR EMS AMBULANCES AND RESIDENTS IN WESTERN LOUDOUN. THE COUNTY ENCOURAGES THE REESTABLISHMENT OF A FULL SERVICE FACILITY AT THE CORNWALL CAMPUS."
- "THE COUNTY RECOGNIZES THAT THE RESIDENTS OF THE ROUTE 50 CORRIDOR DO NOT HAVE ADEQUATE ACCESS TO EMERGENCY CARE OR HOSPITAL RELATED SERVICES."

What's going on? Why is the County Comprehensive Plan being undermined to accommodate HCA?

PASTIMES

HOW 'BOUT THEM COWBOYS?!

7TH INNING STRETCH

ALEX CHIDMACE

Jerry Jones has been looking forward to 2009 for years now.

Next year Jerry gets to open his brand new, only-in-Texas-would-we-build-something-this-ridiculously-extravagant stadium, honoring Cowboys past and present, converts and, of course, Jones' own outsize ego.

At over $1 billion to build, the Cowboys' new stadium will cost four times what it cost for FedEx Field, home of the Redskins, only a decade ago.

At over a billion dollars, the Cowboys' new stadium will seat approximately 80,000 people for games, roughly 11,000 fewer than Dan Snyder crams into FedEx.

Outside the stadium, a billion dollars to build, the Cowboys' new stadium will include the world's largest video board, bagelons of tiny LED's hanging over 100 feet above the center of the stadium, 160 feet long and over 70 feet high, all so people in the stadium can watch the game on the biggest television imaginable rather than being forced to watch the actual, well, you know, game taking place just a little over 100 feet further down.

There will be a retractable roof that, when open, will recreate that giant hole above the field at the old Texas Stadium, so God can watch his favorite team play on Sundays.

There will be gargantuan open end zone plaques, complete with the world's largest sliding glass doors, 120 feet high by 180 feet wide, that will open in only 18 minutes. (Someone better tell Jerry he better watch out for the world's biggest birds, flyin' their giant foot skulls up against those big ol' Cowboy windows.)

The new Cowboys' stadium will, in other words, be the next Wonder of the World, shimmering like a star in the middle of Arlington, Texas. People will flock from around the world just to see the thing, pilgrims to a giant and steel Mecca.

All of which is fantastic news for Jerry Jones since the product he plans to showcase in said stadium is starting to stink worse than the three-week-old Chinese food funk wafting up from Wall Street.

The Cowboys, once three-and-out and the pride of the NFL, everybody's early-season pick for a Super Bowl run, have started to wobble worse than Uncle Ed after too much bourbon-laced eggog at Christmas.

Gone is Adam "What, me worry?" Jones. Gone, at least for the time being, is pretty-boy quarterback, Tony "Butterfingers" Romo. Gone is Roy "I'd rather blow you up than cover you" Williams, all the sadder for exposing receivers who used to love exposing Williams as the second most overrated "star" on the field.

Speaking of overrated, or at least not worth the headlines, the timer on Terrell Owens is ticking dangerously close to the red zone, not the good red zone, mind you, the one that indicates points in the end zone, but the bad one, the one that indicates T.O. is just one more uninvolved game from exploding into a media-fueled temper tantrum that promises to tear his team apart.

With each additional, inexplicable loss, head coach Wade Phillips looks more and more like he'd rather be anywhere, anywhere other than Texas. His post-game press conferences have devolved into something better witnessed on a psychoanalyst's couch than a television.

Jerry Jones has responded the only way he knows how, by rolling up his sleeves and getting his hands dirty, meditating and moving around with his 'Boys, trying the channel the brilliance that Al Davis used to be known for in the time before time.

He's brought in another formerly overrated Roy Williams, this one a receiver for the offense. (Gotta have balance.) Williams, a former first-round pick of the truly dreadful Detroit Lions, a possession receiver who's never lived up to his own hype, cost Jones three future draft picks, including a first- and a third-rounder.

Jones provides the Cowboys' sideline in palpable agony, grating his teeth and slapping his hands, as if to channel some sort of energy, some sort of enthusiasm, some sort of something into his lackluster, under-performing bunch.

The fear that he must be about to open a billion-dollar stadium with this group of face-planters has got to be absolutely grating Jones from the inside.

Couldn't he appoint to a nicer guy. You'll find no apologists here. Speaking of the Burgundy and Gold, Sunday's victory over the Browns, while not the prettiest thing this season, was a game they had to have and they did what good teams have to do: they went out and grabbed it, albeit with some help from Browns' place kicker Phil Dawson.

Too bad most of us watching it from home missed two of the biggest plays of the game, thanks to the bafflingly I.V. sight lines afforded T.V. cameras at FedEx.

Here's a question: anybody got a couple of used milk crates they could donate to Mr. Snyder so he could raise those cameras another twelve inches off the floor?

You know, so his poor schlabs watching at home could actually see the game.

T.A. BARRON: AN AUTHOR WITH A POWERFUL MESSAGE FOR YOUNG READERS

GENIE FORD

As the call of celebrity takes former holder on our culture, it's refreshing to find someone who is able to give young readers a powerful message while offering them some spectacular entertainment. Because he is an author of extraordinary talents and a man of great compassion who cherishes all children, we thought it fitting that we focus this month on T.A. Barron.

T.A. Barron was with us recently in Middleburg, and he left us with some wonderful memories—readers' copies of his books. In 'The Hero's Trail' he shows us that we need our heroes today more than ever. Not just celebrities, but real heroes—people whose character enables them to triumph over great obstacles, and to make a genuine difference to our world. That is the core of this powerful, ground-breaking book. Combining moving profiles of heroic young people with insightful commentary, T.A. Barron eloquently shows that heroes can be lasting inspirations—real guides on our journey through life. Best of all, anyone can be a hero. Yes—anyone. Whatever your gender, race, age, or background, you can find heroic qualities inside your self. You can make a difference. And you can inspire others along the way.

That's a message we are proud to share with our readers.

T.A. Barron also brings us 'Merlin's Dragon,' the first book in a new epic trilogy. Long ago, at the dawn of Merlin's world, a strange little creature appeared. Part lizard, part bat, his eyes glowed with mysterious light. Merlin—someone very small in size but very large in destiny. When Merlin discovers a terrible new threat to his world and the great wizard Merlin, he begins an epic journey that takes him from the Great Forest of Avalon to the outermost edge of the spirit realm. But his hidden journey by far will be to face his own deepest fears. Only if he survives will he be able to save Merlin—and find a future as great as his heart.

You could also join the great wizard Merlin—the great mage of Camelot and mentor to King Arthur—as he reveals at last the secrets of his lost youth. The 5-book epic, 'The Lost Years of Merlin,' begins when a young boy wanders alone, nearly drowned, on page one of Book One and finally concludes when that same young man, now a wizard, makes the most agonizing choice of his life in the final pages of Book Five. By the end, Merlin has come a long way from that boy who washed ashore. He has grown into the greatest wizard of all times.

Other young readers may also want to start with the author's three novels about a heroic young woman named Kate Gordon. The New York Times Book Review said about 'The Ancient One': "Mortality, in all its splendor and sadness, is T.A. Barron's subject." Perhaps so, but Kate's three adventures concern other subjects, as well, and she travels far and wide in these books back in time to a lost Native American tribe, to a distant galaxy to save the life of her astronaut grandfather and down to the very bottom of the sea.

There are books for young children, as well. 'The Day The Stones Walked' is about one of the most remote and mysterious places on the planet—Enter Island. 'High as a Hawk' is based on an extraordinary page out of American history. It's the story of how a brave eight-year-old girl and a famous mountain guide climbed Longs Peak in Colorado in 1905. These are just some memorable books in this author's wonderful body of work. Wrap up a few in a ribbon for Christmas, and you have the perfect gift. You can also rest assured that you are giving the young readers in your life books that have a compelling, positive message. They'll put aside those video games once they're hooked on T.A. Barron's books. The thing that comes in your home will be delightful—it's the sound of young minds at work.

T.A. Barron has also established the Gloria Barron Prize for Young Heroes.

He created the prize in honor of his mother, who he says was his first hero. The prize honors outstanding young leaders who have made a significant positive difference to people and our planet. Their leadership and courage make them true heroes and inspirations to us all.

Each year, the Barron Prize selects ten winners nationwide. Half of the winners have focused on helping their communities and fellow beings, half have focused on protecting the health and sustainability of the environment.

These young people reflect the great diversity of America. They are female and male, urban and rural, and from many backgrounds. Examples are Michelle and Brian, who organized a school for disabled kids; Carter, who led the effort to conserve a local river; Ashley, who created a scholarship fund for African girls; Kyle, who organized a reading mentorship program; Jojo, who cleaned up South Carolina's beaches; Ryan, who helped provide clean drinking water to more than 70 African villages; and Barbara, who created a successful recycling project in Texas.

The goal of the Barron Prize is to celebrate such heroic young people and inspire others to do their part. We're proud to be associated with a writer of such power and integrity.

Other young readers may also want to start with the author's three novels about a heroic young woman

EMC HORSE AMBULANCE PROVIDES IMPORTANT SERVICES AT VIRGINIA EQUINE EVENTS

The five-member ambulance crew from Virginia Tech's Marion duPont Scott Equine Medical Center and their well-equipped rig provide emergency care and transport services to horses that incur injuries in Showplace and Point-to-Point events which take place throughout the Mid-Atlantic region. But, as prepared as they are, crew members would rather the horses remain injury-free.

The ambulance is the only vehicle of its kind in Virginia on hand during numerous equine events during the spring and fall seasons. "If a horse is injured during an event, we have the ability to triage and transport him, under the guidance of a veterinarian, to a nearby site where the veterinarian can examine him further," said John Dashiell, who oversees the EMC ambulance service.

Like any ambulance, this rig is designed and equipped to be of enormous use in an emergency situation. "In configuring and stocking the ambulance, we went about things very methodically," Dashiell explained.

"The trailer, started off as standard issue equipment," Dashiell noted, "but even before we obtained it, we had plans for adding structural reinforcement and adjustable breast bars, electrical outlets, a winch capable of pulling up to 8000 pounds, and work area lighting," he said. "We customized it so it better serves veterinarians and injured horses' needs."

"In stocking the ambulance, we did our research," Dashiell said. "We asked veterinarians what they needed most, and put those items on board. One of the most important items we carry is water and lots of it. Every time we go out," he noted, "we have 170 gallons of water, which we primarily use to cool horses down if they've become overheated."

Other supplies include various sizes and types of splints, bandage materials, high-volume fans, and a misting unit. "We also carry a strong, lightweight sled that we can use to move or transport a horse even if he's unable to walk on his owns," Dashiell said. The need for the ambulance service increases every year, and Dashiell, who has received formal instruction in search and recovery as well as emergency responder training, would like to see it at even more events, carrying additional equipment and supplies, and crewed by a staff that has undergone more formal training. But he knows that time and funding are limited. "The thing is, we wouldn't be able to do that at all if it weren't for private donations made by a generous clientele and members of the equine community," they're the ones who provided the funds to purchase this equipment," he explained. "And, bear in mind, this is not a profit center; the charges for our services only cover our costs to maintain and operate the ambulance."

When the ambulance is put to use, the crew finds that horse owners are very appreciative. "The feedback we get is extremely positive," said Dr. Nathaniel White, EMC Director. "John takes a great deal of pride in the ambulance service, and because of this dedication, the race communities and veterinarians now depend on having a dedicated team to help injured horses. Our goal is to make sure we provide optimal care for the horses."

"The accolades are great, but all credit for the program should really go to everyone who is involved with it from the ambulance crew to the donors who helped purchase the equipment, to horse owners, to veterinarians who provide their services at equine events, to riders

Though Dashiell stresses the teamwork that goes into operating the ambulance service, in 2006 he was singled out for a prestigious award for his outstanding contribution as a volunteer on behalf of the Virginia Point-to-Point. He was presented with the Virginia Huntman Award, "which was just a tremendous honor," Dashiell said. Speaking with Dashiell, the passion and enthusiasm he has for the EMC ambulance service is evident. "We're the only ones within hundreds of miles who can provide this type of service," he noted. "When we support an event, it's very likely that at least one of our donors will be attending. On that day, when they see us there, I hope they are as proud of this team and this service as they were on day one."

Virginia Tech's Marion duPont Scott Equine Medical Center is a premier full-service equine hospital located in Leesburg, Virginia. It offers advanced specialty care, 24-hour emergency treatment, and diagnostic services for all ages and breeds of horses. One of three campuses that comprise the Virginia-Maryland College of Veterinary Medicine, the Center's team of equine specialists is committed to providing exceptional treatment to patients, superior service to clients, and cutting-edge research to the equine industry.

FOXCROFT STUDENT IS NATIONAL EVENTING CHAMPION

KATE ALDRICH WINS WELLPRIDE AEC JUNIOR TRAINING LEVEL TITLE

Kate Aldrich, a 17-year-old senior at Foxcroft School, and her mount, William Don Tell, posted the top dressage score and then had clear rides on the cross-country and stadium jumping phases in early September to claim the Junior Level title at the Wellpriede American Eventing Championships, held in Wayne, IL.

Kate, who rides for Foxcroft's Equitation and Eventing teams, posted her best dressage score ever, an outstanding 24.7, before the rains came. Despite a half-hour hold just before their cross-country ride and rain during the jumping competition, Aldrich and Will completed the contest cleanly for her first national championship.

A graduate of the Hill School in Middleburg, Aldrich is an Honor Roll student, captain of the riding team that was Reserve Champion of the Tri-State Equitation League last year, and serves in various leadership roles at the nationally renowned girls' boarding and day preparatory school. She is the daughter of David and Jennifer Aldrich of Huntly, VA.

Major development along Route 50 is back in the news:

"Frankly, that corridor needs something big"

Chris West, Inova Health Systems
referring to the Route 50 corridor
Leesburg Today, 10/10/08

According to Inova, despite the overwhelming rejection of the Dulles South CPAM in 2006, Route 50 needs 'something big.'

That might be news to the thousands of Dulles South residents who asked the County to reject the massive increase of 33,000 houses.

WHY IS INOVA SAYING THAT?

BECAUSE THEY WERE PART OF THE DULLES SOUTH CPAM.

The next Loudoun hospital belongs in Broadlands.

In 2010, the BRMC location will be closer to 90% of county residents than a location along Route 50; by 2020, even with continued growth in the County, a full 88% of county residents will be closer to the BRMC location than a Route 50 location.

BRMC complies with the Health Care Comprehensive Plan.

"Based on review of the Countywide Health Care Facilities Policies, the proposed Broadlands Regional Medical Center complies with the service and location criteria given the regional nature of medical centers as specified in the County's adopted land use policies for health care facilities." — County Planning Staff Report, ZCPA 2008-0011, ZCPA 2008-0012, SPEI 2008-0028

SPECIALIZED EYE CARE FOR HORSES AVAILABLE AT MARION DU PONT SCOTT EQUINE MEDICAL CENTER

Specialized eye care for horses available at Virginia-Maryland College of Veterinary Medicine's Marion duPont Scott Equine Medical Center.

It's been just a few months since board-certified veterinary ophthalmologist Dr. Greenwood Lynch became affiliated with Virginia Tech's Marion duPont Scott Equine Medical Center. But in this short time, Lynch has provided many patients with much-needed specialized eye care, using equipment not available elsewhere in Northern Virginia.

"Because the center has such state-of-the-art equipment, we can do procedures there that are just not available anywhere else in this area," Lynch said. "Horses would have to travel to North Carolina, Pennsylvania or Blackburg, Va., to have some of the treatments available at the equine medical center," she noted.

Lynch is based out of Eye Care for Animals at the Life Center in Leesburg, and sees patients at the equine medical center on a weekly basis. To diagnose horses with ocular problems, Lynch utilizes a handheld gonioscope to obtain a detailed look at the front wall of the eye, an ophthalmoscope to look at the back of the eye, a speculum to hold the eyelids open, a gonioscope to look at the back of the eye, an ophthalmometer to test for glaucoma, an ocular ultrasound to look for retinal detachment, and an electroretinogram to test for retinal function. Specialized surgical equipment includes an operating microscope, lasers, and a cryotherapy unit.

"Having such a specialized service available can only improve the quality of care that horses receive," Lynch stated. "In collaborating with the center, I can already see that we are able to provide a valuable service in the Mid-Atlantic region," she added.

Dr. Nathaniel White, director of the center, says he agrees. "Our goal is to offer the best medical care for horses. Dr. Lynch provides an extra level of expertise for our patients that most of this type of specialized care," he said.

According to this is Georgia Corey, owner of Elio's, a 12-year-old Pinto Saddlebred. Lynch treated Elio's recently for a cancerous tumor discovered in his right eye by his veterinarian, Dr. Valerie Babcock, shot, and just thought that he had brushed against a branch," Corey said. "But then it returned bloodshot, so when we saw Dr. Babcock, she identified it right away as a squamous cell carcinoma - one that she said would grow very quickly," she continued.

"Fortunately, Dr. Babcock was aware that Dr. Lynch was now seeing patients at the equine medical center," Corey said. "So, in very short order, we had an appointment with Dr. Lynch. I brought Elio in for an exam and a biopsy."

The happy accident that Elio's not only had a tumor, but the tumor was malignant, and it was located on his eyeball, not on his eyelid or a membrane. "That scared me," Corey noted. "My greatest fear was that he might lose his eye," she said. "But, my worries were unfounded; everything worked out great."

Elio underwent his surgical procedure, which included the removal of the tumor as well as freezing the surrounding area, and Corey took him home the next day. "Since his surgery," Corey said, "he has not showed down at all," she related. "He's still a live wire - lots of fun. It was amazing to me that - not long after his surgery - we were out riding again. We've even done some new and different things together, which has been wonderful," Corey said.

"Of course I was very pleased with the treatment that Elio received, but the convenience factor is also noteworthy," Corey said. "The fact that I could bring Elio to Leesburg to obtain this type of specialized care was just so great. To not have to travel years away for these kinds of treatments helps tremendously," she added.

TRI-COUNTY FEEDS, ETC. AWARDS VADA/NOVA MUSICAL FREESTYLE CHAMPION

Jesse Noel, Director of Marketing with Tri-County Feeds, Etc. in Marshall, Virginia, congratulated James Houston, high score winner of the 2008 Virginia Dressage Association's Northern Virginia Chapter's (VADA/Nova's) Musical Freestyle Championship, and presented him with the championship cooler. James' stellar ride took place at Morven Park International Equestrian Center in Leesburg, Virginia on September 20th.

Riding to music from James Bond, James Houston and Donnerick, his eight-year-old 17.1 hand bay Oldenburg gelding, scored an impressive 85.104%. James and Donnerick reside in The Plains, Virginia.

Tri-County Feeds, Etc. sponsored the VADA/Nova musical freestyle classes throughout the 2008 show season. "We were very impressed with the outstanding quality of the musical freestyle performances throughout this VADA/Nova show season," Tri-County Feeds, Etc. was pleased to provide awards to winners of these classes and to James Houston, who was the high score winner of the 2008 Championship," said Jesse Noel.

FOXCROFT SCHOOL BREAKS GROUND FOR NEW ATHLETIC/STUDENT CENTER

Shortly before 2:00 p.m. Saturday (Sept. 27), 14 golden shovels hit the dirt outside Foxcroft School's English Activities Building and the entire student body - decked out in athletic, riding, dance and spirit club garb - erupted in boisterous cheers and booming drum rolls. The assembled

Those wielding shovels in the ceremonial ground-breaking included Pamela Mars Wright '78, her mother and Foxcroft Trustee Virginia C. Mars, daughter each other as a Fox or a Hound (in intramural competition)... The overall athletic ability will obviously increase from such a venue, but the most exciting aspect of this building is the community aspect. This is a building for all alumni and all facets of Foxcroft life. The entire Foxcroft family will benefit from it.

When complete, the facility will feature a new double-box gym as well as a renovated competition gym; a state-of-the-art weight and fitness center; dedicated trainer's room; mezzanine-level running track

The double gym, given by the Mars Family, will be named the Mary Louise Leipheimer Gymnasium as a tribute to Foxcroft's Head of School, who is completing her 20th year at the helm. The student center, given in honor of the Class

"This building supports all aspects of Foxcroft life and values," she said. "These young women and future Foxcroft women will build even more sound bodies in a building where they can dance, cheer, climb, play, laugh, bond together, cheer at the top of their lungs for each other as a Foxcroft athlete -- or against

MOSBY HERITAGE AREA

MHAA TO CONDUCT TWO-DAY
INTERACTIVE WORKSHOP ON JOHN BROWN

MIDDLEBURG, VA, SEPT. 30, 2008—THE MOSBY HERITAGE AREA ASSOCIATION IS CONDUCTING A TWO-DAY PARTICIPATORY WORKSHOP NOVEMBER 7-8 ON THE IMPACT OF JOHN BROWN'S 1859 RAID ON HARRIS FERRY AND THE ENSUING PANIC WHICH OCCURRED IN NORTHERN VIRGINIA. THE TWO-DAY EVENT WILL TAKE PLACE "IN THE FIELD" AT LOCATIONS IN LOUDOUN COUNTY, IN MARYLAND, AND IN HARRIS FERRY, WEST VIRGINIA. IT IS THE FIRST EVENT OF LOUDOUN'S COMMEMORATION OF THE SEQUEL CENTENNIAL OF THE CIVIL WAR, AND HAS BEEN ENDORSED BY THE LOUDOUN CIVIL WAR SEQUEL CENTENNIAL COMMITTEE.

ACCORDING TO RICH GILLESPIE, DIRECTOR OF EDUCATION FOR MHAA, "WHEN JOHN BROWN LED A BAND OF 22 ABOLITIONISTS TO SEIZE THE FEDERAL ARMORY AT HARRIS FERRY IN OCTOBER OF 1859, HIS GOAL WAS TO ARM AREA SLAVES FOR A MASSIVE RUN-OUT TO FREEDOM IN CANADA. HOWEVER, HIS ARMED MISSION MISFIRED; THE MILITIA AND MARINES CAME RATHER THAN SLAVES AND RESULTED IN THE DEATH OR CAPTURE OF ALL BUT FIVE OF HIS MEN."

GILLESPIE SAID OF HIS WORKSHOP, "PARTICIPANTS WILL DISCOVER THAT DESPITE THE TRIAL AND EXECUTION OF BROWN AND SIX OTHERS, A FIRESTORM OF ANGER AND GRAYING FEAR RESULTED IN THE SOUTH, PARTICULARLY IN THE MOSBY HERITAGE AREA THAT ABUTS HARRIS FERRY. THIS FIRESTORM OCCURRED ON THE EVE OF THE PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION OF 1860 THAT LED TO THE DISSOLUTION OF THE UNION. JOHN BROWN'S RAID IS ONE OF THE SINGULAR EVENTS OF OUR REGION'S HISTORY WHICH IS GRIPPING AND STILL CONTROVERSIAL."

MORE
THE TWO-DAY WEEKEND EVENT WILL IMMERSE PARTICIPANTS IN THE ISSUES SURROUNDING THE INSTITUTION OF SLAVERY IN NORTHERN VIRGINIA BEFORE THE CIVIL WAR AND ALLOW FOR DEBATE ON THE POLITICAL OPTIONS THAT EXISTED BY THE LATE 1850S. PARTICIPANTS WILL TAKE ON THE PERSONA OF ONE OF THE RAIDERS AND FOLLOW IN THE FOOTSTEPS OF JOHN BROWN AS SHADOW RE-ENACTORS. YET WHILE DOING THIS, THEY WILL REPEATEDLY BE EXPOSED TO THE RE-

ACTIVITIES OF MOSBYHERITAGEAREA TO THEIR OWN FREE EXPENSE AND TO THE IMPLICATIONS.

SOME WALKING WILL BE INVOLVED, INCLUDING A "CLOAK" OF NIGHT TRIP AND PARTICIPANTS EXPERIENCE BEING SLAVES BREAKING TO A STATION ON THE UNDERGROUND RAILROAD ALONG THE BACK ROADS OF LOUDOUN AND LATER AL BROWN'S RAIDERS MARCHING THEIR WAY INTO HARRIS FERRY WHILE MARCHING BEHIND THE RUSHING POTOMAC RIVER.

MR. GILLESPIE HAS DESIGNED AND WILL CONDUCT THIS PROGRAM WITH THE ASSISTANCE OF MEMBERS FROM THE GRAY HERITAGE INTERPRETIVE GROUP (GHI). THROUGHOUT THE WEEKEND GHI WILL PRESENT SKETCHES OF EVENTS RELATIVE TO THE RAID IN PERSPECTIVE. DURING THE PAUSE FROM TRIP, GHI HAS PROVIDED DELICIOUS CAVALIERS, COUSINS, AND COFFEE PROGRAMS AT ATRIA.

THE WORKSHOP BEGINS AT 8:45 P.M. ON FRIDAY EVENING AT MOSEY PARK NEAR LEBANON, ONE OF LOUDOUN'S LARGEST PLANTATIONS IN 1859, AND ENDS SATURDAY NIGHT INSIDE THE ENGINE HOUSE AT HARRIS FERRY, WHERE JOHN BROWN WAS CAPTURED. BILLED AS "AN ADVENTURE IN TIME," THIS PROGRAM COMES WITH A HISTORY OF MEMORABLE OCCURRENCES. SUGGESTIONS FOR BACKGROUND READING WILL BE PROVIDED.

PARTICIPANTS WILL BE RESPONSIBLE FOR THEIR OWN LODGING ON FRIDAY AND SATURDAY EVENING. MEALS HAVE BEEN ARRANGED A ROOM BLIND FOR $75 PER NIGHT, WITH BREAKFAST, AT THE COUNTRY INN AND BUTTER IN LEBANON. THE DEADLINE FOR THIS ROOM BLOCK IS OCTOBER 20, 2008. COUNTRY INN AND BUTTER CAN BE REACHED AT 703-438-5700. BEHIND THE MOSBY HERITAGE AREA ASSOCIATION'S JOHN BROWN WALKER TO GET THE DISCOUNT RATE.

ROOMS MAY BE BOOKED DIRECTLY ONLINE AT WWW.COUNTRYINN.COM/BOOKING/WHITETRAIL. HELP IS ALSO AVAILABLE FROM THE LOUDOUN CONVENTION AND TOURISM ASSOCIATION AT WWW.VIRGILLOUDOUN.COM OR BY TELEPHONE (800) 728-6118 EXT. 11. INDIVIDUALS MAY CONTACT THE MOSBY HERITAGE AREA ASSOCIATION AT WWW.MHAA.ORG OR (703) 438-5700. FOR MORE INFO, VISIT WWW.MHAA.ORG.

cart-loads of food, toys, collars and leashes and more. I can't expect bringing anything you need no longer needs one of the stores.

And for anyone wondering how much of a difference one person can make, I would like to cite a recent example. I was told that the city is doing to help during these scary times. On a weekly and some daily basis, they are sending out supplies to help. I was told that it takes in foster dogs and finds new homes for them. The dog rescue helps are direct victims of the economic downturn. I was told that of Wylie Wagg in Middleburg, she is truly busy, and she finds the need to help.

In times of crisis, heroes always emerge. I think Colette is a hero. She is a person who is willing to do for all of the people who are in need. She is a person who gives of her time and money on our behalf. This is your chance to be a hero. I think you should be a hero. "To the world you may be just one person, but to one needy pet you are the world."

Albert, a Jack Russell Terrier, is Chairman of the Board of Wylie Wagg. He is a very busy person. He is the owner of their people, in Middleburg, Fairfax and Tysons. Email him at bertspawpal@gmail.com.
